

MINERS' STRIKE A POSSIBILITY

Conference Of Employers And Workmen Has Ended In A Failure Thus Far.

MAKING AN APPEAL TO ROOSEVELT

Operators Formulate A Petition To The President For The Appointment Of A Commission On Arbitration.

(By Associated Press.) Indianapolis, Ind., March 30.—President Mitchell in calling the national convention of the United Mine Workers of America to order today, said that after reading the resolutions adopted last night by the bituminous operators asking President Roosevelt to appoint a commission to investigate the mining conditions, he sent a telegram to the President telling him that fifty per cent of the tonnage in the states mentioned in the resolution were willing to pay the advance asked for.

Appeal to Roosevelt. Into this situation has been injected at the eleventh hour the bare possibility of re-establishing peace through the medium of an arbitration plan less remote than one coming at the end of a bitter struggle.

At a meeting held last night, after the late had been cast for a strike, the bituminous coal operators decided to make an appeal direct to President Roosevelt, requesting him to appoint a commission to investigate the dispute and make recommendations regarding the scale of wages which should be paid for all classes of labor in and about the mines involved.

The immediate selection of this commission is provided for in the resolution adopted by the operators. It will be presented to President Mitchell and the miners' delegates for their consideration at their meeting today. The arbitration proposal will not avert the inauguration of the strike. There is no reason to hope that President Mitchell or the executive board will issue an order stopping Monday's walkout.

Neither do the operators contemplate averting an actual strike. What actually depends upon this eleventh-hour suggestion, its adoption and fulfillment, is whether the strike will be short lived or a long drawn out struggle that is almost certain to paralyze the mining industry throughout the country and affect the immediate welfare of millions of citizens directly and indirectly.

Southwest to Join Strike. Failure of the bituminous operators and miners in the southwest district to reach an agreement in their conference, added to the gravity of the situation. As a result of this action 30,000 more bituminous miners will quit work at once, bringing the total number of bituminous miners ordered to strike at the beginning of the month up to 145,000. These, with the 150,000 anthracite men ordered to suspend work Monday, make the total number of miners who will be idle at the beginning of the week 305,000, unless the arbitration scheme goes into effect at once.

If the eleventh hour arbitration plan fails the strike becomes general, and at least 500,000 miners will be idle before the struggle has progressed far. Every mining district in the country takes its cue from the central. The strike decision reached by the central district is, therefore, equivalent to a strike decision in the others. The situation in these other districts is as follows:

The Iowa district has always awaited the action of the central field before signing its statement has been postponed awaiting the action taken Thursday.

The Michigan district is usually governed by the central field's action and has awaited the result of this meeting.

The West Virginia state convention is in session awaiting the outcome of this conference.

The Kentucky Operators' association has representatives endeavoring to get Mr. Mitchell's consent to hold their joint convention, with a view to negotiate a settlement without any reference as to basis.

Coal for Four Months. With complete or at least partial paralysis of the coal industry in prospect, stored up in the country are millions of tons of fuel. Even the vast

TURNPIKE PASSES TO A PRIVATE CONTROL

Old Perkiomen and Reading Corporation Ends a Long and Useful Life.

Pottstown, Pa., March 30.—After being in existence ninety-six years, the stockholders of the Perkiomen and Reading Turnpike company met here today to dissolve the company. This step is taken because the corporation no longer owns any pike, its last mile having been condemned and paid for last month. At today's meeting the proceeds of this mile, $2350, was divided among the stockholders, making a total of about $70,000, that has been distributed as a result of the condemnation of the entire pike during the past fifteen years. The company was incorporated by a special act of the Pennsylvania legislature on March 20, 1810, to build a pike from Reading to the Perkiomen at Collegeville. For years it was one of the highways to Philadelphia and paid large dividends on its $31,500 capital stock. Twenty years ago the agitation started for the abolition of toll gates, and ever since one section after another was condemned till no more of the pike remained.

NEW MINISTRY IS IN TROUBLE

Secretary Of State For The Colonies Orders Suspension Of Execution.

MANY NEGROES WERE TO BE HUNG

Governor Of Natal Overrides Prime Minister Who Refused To Obey The Edict From London And Angers Colonists.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) London, March 30.—The new liberal ministry, out of a clear political sky Thursday evoked a storm which, within twenty-four hours, has spread to every part of the empire.

Lord Elgin, secretary of state for the colonies, called an order to Natal, South Africa, suspending the execution of twelve negroes condemned to be hanged for murder committed during the recent outbreaks.

The prime minister of Natal, C. J. Smyth, defied Lord Elgin's orders and refused to postpone the execution. Thereupon the governor, Sir Henry McCallum, by an arbitrary resort to letters patent, postponed the hangings. The Natal cabinet immediately resigned.

The action of Lord Elgin in interfering so peremptorily with the home affairs of a colony has raised a storm of protest in conservative papers, at the clubs, and in political circles. It is denounced as a grave blunder and a violation of constitutional usage, which is fraught with the gravest possibilities of disaster.

Colonists Are Indignant. From the principal centers of South Africa come dispatches regarding angry indignation, not of Natal alone, but of all the British colonies, the feeling being comparable to that which would prevail among the whites of the southern states if the national

BIG GALLERY IN MUNICIPAL COURT

Today To Hear Trial of Milton Junction Assault and Battery Case—Society Represented

Before a gallery of nearly 200 people, including witnesses and partisans from Milton Junction and a number of Janesville people, including several society ladies, the assault and battery action of the State vs. Archie Cullen, Jr., a butcher, brought on complaint of Dennis Hayes, representative of the Standard Oil Co. The jury drawn consisted of John F. Ketchum, C. K. Milmore, Samuel Watson, P. J. Van Pool, Henry Taylor and Geo. T. Croft. Atty. Chas. Pierce, representing the complainant, said that the State would endeavor to show that his client, as the outcome of a discussion with members of the meat market firm of Mentz, Garthwait & Cullen over some disputed bills and an alleged insult to his little daughter, Nellie, he was set upon by Cullen and beaten almost to death—so horribly punished that he was not able to leave his bed for twelve days. The episode occurred two weeks ago last Tuesday. Atty. T. S. Nolan, representing the defendant Cullen, said that he would endeavor to show by the evidence that Hayes went after Cullen behind his own counter after calling him a loathsome name and that the defendant used no more force than was necessary to reduce the pride of his quarrelsome antagonist. Then the trial was under way and after some sharp exchanges between the lawyers and the command for less noise in the courtroom, the fight was under way. Hayes was the first witness.

MADE A MISTAKE IN THREE COLORED MEN

Deacon Turner of Madison Admits He Was Wrong in Stating They Were Frauds

In an article from yesterday's Madison Democrat a warning was sent out to beware of three colored men, who might visit Janesville. The article was given glaring headlines in a morning paper and in justice to the men the following is copied from the Democrat of today, repudiating the story:

"John Turner, who brought to the Democrat office the information that three colored strangers were in the city soliciting funds wrongfully, confesses that he is mistaken—that the men are as they represent. These men are Bishop J. A. Jackson of the Evangelical Methodist church, Joseph Smith, a traveling agent for the colored school to be built in Milwaukee, and Rev. W. M. Williams, serving also in that capacity. Mr. Williams has been in Madison for several years and carries excellent references from citizens for whom he has worked. The school for which subscriptions are being obtained is to be erected in Milwaukee and will cost $20,000. It already is in existence, but occupies leased quarters. Bishop Jackson is well known to the colored citizens of Madison and acquaintance is expressed that Mr. Turner should have classed him as one unworthy of credit."

GAS WELL FIRE IS QUENCHED

Remarkable Contest Won by Kansas After Five Weeks' Work

Caney, Kan., March 30.—The Kansas Natural Gas company's big gas well near here, which was struck by lightning Feb. 23, was successfully extinguished Thursday. The second hood, which was a failure two weeks ago, was placed over the well. The ground had been made wet and soft around the well so that the hood sank deep into it. Over 100 yards of canvas ducking was sewed into big blankets and first a layer of canvas and then a layer of gumbo was built around the hood until there were tons of earth banked up.

Steam pipes were connected to the vent pipe to prevent the flames from rushing down into the hood when the valve was shut. Then a big spool was attached to the long arm used to turn the valve and around this spool wire was wound.

Beginning with this issue, as proposed on Tuesday last, only the names of those candidates who have more than twenty-five votes to their credit will appear in the bulletin. A notation has been made in the records of the balloting showing who are affected by this action and whenever additional votes are received for any of these sufficient to make the required number their names will be reinstated. This action is taken to simplify the bulletin as much as possible. So many have been suggested for the Gazette trophies during the preliminary skirmishing—all of them worthy and deserving of the honors—that the bulletin has far outgrown the space allotted to it and now that the balloting is setting around the leaders it is believed no one will disapprove of the change.

Every day of the past week has brought a narrowing of the contest and the last half of the race begins with the issues so clearly defined that "they who run may read." And the best of it all is that there is not a discordant note anywhere. Mrs. Mason said something last evening which covered this phase of the contest completely when she remarked that the trophies were only worth the winning if they were won fairly and she added, "No one has been voted for that I could not congratulate sincerely and truly if they should win and I should lose." That is the spirit which has prevailed among all the candidates from the beginning and to the Gazette it is the most gratifying feature of the struggle. It means that whoever celebrates a victory will celebrate it with the good wishes of their rivals as well as their friends and that is to be desired above any other consideration. The Janesville candidates are beginning to turn to the votes of their friends outside of their home city and unless all signs fall the thousands of votes that are available throughout the county will play an important part in the daily returns hereafter. But the towns may conclude to take an inning now. Milton Junction has blazed the way and nearly all sister towns have candidates who could poll an enormous vote if they tried for it and if they tried these votes would more than likely go to the home candidate. The biggest half of the race is still to be run. It is full of possibilities and most anything can happen before the polls are finally closed. Early in the week the judges of election will be named and it can be said now that the committee will be made up of men who possess the entire confidence of the people of Rock county. The only changes yesterday were brought about by Mr. Connor's friends and those of Mrs. Dunwiddle who voted them back into second place and Miss Wills' friends voted her back into fourth place. Mrs. Mason and Mr. Smith were forced back to third place and Miss Burrington to fifth.

Ballots must be clipped from regular issues of The Gazette, and no extra copies of this paper will be printed during the contest for the sake of the ballot contained therein. The Gazette diamonds are to be awarded to the lady and gentleman having the largest number of votes at the close of the contest and the flags to those having the second largest number, for presentation to the society or organization which they may select.

NEW IMMIGRATION BILL.
Measure Increases Head Tax and Adds to Prohibited Class.

Washington, March 30.—Senator Dillingham Thursday submitted the report of the committee on immigration on his bill amending the immigration laws. The changes made in the present law are numerous. The head tax on incoming aliens is increased from $2 to $5, and steamships are subject to fines of $100 for bringing to the United States any person prevented from entering by reason of afflictions of mind or body. The present law provides for such fines only in the case of aliens afflicted with loathsome or contagious diseases. The bill adds to the classes of aliens now excluded by law all imbeciles, feeble-minded persons who are mentally or physically defective, such defect being of a nature which may affect the immigrant's ability to earn a living, children under 17 years, unless accompanied by parents, and strengthen the provisions excluding polygamists, criminals and prostitutes. The head tax is imposed on aliens in transit except in certain cases and is abolished in a case of foreign officials coming to the United States overland. The bill further provides that steamship companies be required to furnish a list of all outgoing aliens before departure from the United States. To aid in promoting the distribution of admitted aliens among the states and territories desiring settlers the bill establishes a division of information in the bureau of immigration. Information concerning states and territories would be collected and distributed among admitted aliens and states or territories may maintain representatives at the various immigrant stations for the purpose of inducing aliens to settle there.

CHEAPER THAN OIL.
Denatured Alcohol to Be Used for Fuel and Light by Farmers.

Washington, March 30.—If a bill reported to the house from the ways and means committee becomes law, the farmers anywhere in the country will be able to make all their illuminating and heating fluid they want and be entirely independent of the Standard Oil company. The bill permits the manufacture, free of internal revenue tax, of alcohol when it is rendered unfit for human consumption. At present the internal revenue tax on every gallon of pure alcohol is $2.20. The retail price is $2.50 a gallon, which leaves 30 cents to cover the cost of production and provide a profit. It is claimed that alcohol can be sold as cheaply as kerosene or gasoline. Under the provisions of the bill small distilleries may be opened wherever desired, where alcohol may be distilled free of taxation, provided something is mixed with it to render it unfit for use as a drink or medicine. The commissioner of internal revenue has a field which will render the denatured alcohol unsealing to the taste, and the alcohol cannot be redistilled to remove this ingredient as cheaply as it can be made.

Illinois Fares Well.

Washington, March 30.—An omnibus building bill, carrying between $18,000,000 and $19,000,000, will be reported to the house about the middle of April. Among the items will be found liberal allowances for Illinois. Public buildings will be authorized at the following places in the state: Moline, Macomb, Belvidere, Waukegan, Lincoln, Dixon, Kewanee, Peoria, East St. Louis, Belleville, Decatur, and Paris. An omnibus public building bill was reported to the house last session carrying a total expenditure of more than $14,000,000, but it was not passed. The appropriations carried by the bill now being perfected have been distributed so that more than a majority of the members are in favor of its passage.

Babcock's Successor.

Washington, March 30.—At a meeting of the republican members of the Wisconsin delegation in congress Representative James H. Davidson of the eighth district was chosen to represent the state on the republican congressional campaign committee as the successor of Representative Babcock, who retires as chairman of that committee at his own request. There was some talk in the meeting that Mr. Davidson might be chosen as secretary of the committee. Representative Charles B. Landis has been selected by the Indiana delegation to succeed Representative Overstreet on the committee, Mr. Overstreet having declined to retain his place.

Asks Place for Negro.

Washington, March 30.—F. L. Barnett, of Chicago, assistant in the state's attorney's office, called at the white house and urged the appointment of a negro to the first high grade office that should become vacant. Mr. Barnett declared that he was not seeking office for himself, but he thought a negro should be given a chance to demonstrate his ability in one of the high offices at the president's disposal.

S. S. S. FOR THE BLOOD

The purifying action and curative properties of this great remedy have made "S. S. S. For The Blood" a household name, and thousands who are today enjoying perfect health owe their recovery from blood or skin diseases to this universally used blood medicine. S. S. S. is made entirely from roots, herbs and barks which possess not only cleansing and healing ingredients, but building up and strengthening properties to keep the blood in perfect order. No one can be well when the blood is impure, they lack the energy and strength that is natural with health, the complexion becomes pale and sallow, the vitality is weakened and they suffer from a general broken down condition. When the waste or refuse matter, which nature intends shall be thrown off, is left in the system because of a sluggish, torpid condition of the expelling members, it is absorbed into the blood, making this vital stream weak, sour and acid, and its condition is manifested by boils, pimples, rashes, blotches and other eruptions of the skin. S. S. S. goes into the circulation and removes every particle of blood-taint or poison of every character, makes the blood fresh and strong and gives energy to the entire body. When the blood has been cleansed by S. S. S. all skin diseases and eruptions pass away and the smooth, clear skin, glowing with health, shows that the body is being nourished by rich, pure blood. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, Contagious Blood-Poison, etc., are all deep-seated blood disorders, and for their cure nothing equals S. S. S. It does not injuriously affect the most delicate parts of the body and can be taken with perfect safety by old or young. Book on the blood and any medical advice desired without charge.

Vote against the Dunn pocket ball lot law.

Thinking voters are having plenty of literature to read on the judicial situation.

It is funny how the editorial columns of some papers can be purchased at so much per line.

The farmers are beginning to realize who is their friend when it comes to campaign time.

One by one the alleged signers of the coterie's petition for circuit judge repudiate their signatures.

Voting is complicated enough now without making it more so by adding the rainbow ballot of the Dunn law.

The present judicial campaign has brought out a lot of blow hards and double dealers that will not help them professionally.

Willful, malicious and deliberate lying appears to some would be dictators of public opinion to be their stock in trade.

That Dunn pocket ballot law should be beaten by the largest majority that any measure was ever snowed under by.

Judge Clementson is having a contest on for his circuit judgeship in the adjacent districts, as well as Judge Dunwiddie.

If there is anyone in the country that does not know that there is a fight on for the circuit judgeship, he is a dead one, truly.

When that interurban line is built to Madison and the sleeping cars run through the city, maybe Janesville will awaken to her opportunities.

Bernard Palmer, Attorney Towne, Edward Ryan, and lastly William Bates have expressed themselves on certain campaign methods of certain attorneys.

A supporter of Judge Sale, who a week ago wanted to bet his clothes on Judge Sale's chances of election, said yesterday he guessed Dunwiddie would get a big vote in Rock county.

Vote for C. D. Rosa for judge of the Beloit municipal court. Do not forget to cast your vote for him for the honor of the courts, of Rock county.

Instead of really having the signatures of the attorneys it appears the Sale supporters copied the circuit court calendar list of attorneys and in a few cases made mistakes and got the wrong names down.

Three days more and election day will be here. Gigantic efforts are being made on all sides to gain votes by all candidates where there is any opposition.

There is one thing that Janesville does not want this summer and that is a street carnival or fair, even on a vacant lot. Two times is enough for any city to stand for.

JUST MUTTERINGS.

The director of the public policy of the Milton Journal ate something just before the last issue of his paper and makes the following statement: "A good reason for electing C. D. Rosa to the Beloit judgeship is because the Janesville Gazette favors Bates." It is not often the Gazette notices these ramblings, but in this case it is so absurd that attention is called to it. The Gazette urges the election of C. D. Rosa as judge of the new Beloit court and has urged it since he announced his candidacy. It has not indulged in personalities at the expense of Mr. Bates, but it has told its readers to vote for Rosa. After the Milton Journal editor gets over his attack of indigestion he may become better natured.

BITTER PARTISANSHIP.

At the outset of the present judicial campaign the Gazette stated that it had the greatest admiration for Judge Sale as a man, as a lawyer, as a judge, and that the opposition to his candidacy for circuit judgeship was not based on any of these grounds but due to the fact that the Gazette believed he could not be elected and was sure Judge Dunwiddie could. It still adheres to this statement. Judge Dunwiddie today is stronger than ever and the results next Tuesday will show the Gazette was right in prognosticating his election. In conducting the campaign the Gazette has not indulged in personal references beyond condemning the action of the coterie of lawyers who seek to rule or ruin the judicial situation. Personalities in a judicial campaign are out of place. Campaigning by free use of liquor and cigars, promises and veiled hints, are equally bad. Friends of local candidates have criticized the Gazette for not exposing, as they term it, Judge Grimm's campaign methods. It is known that Judge Grimm has catered to the saloon element to the dissatisfied to men whose vote is usually sought in municipal campaigns and can be bought for a cigar or a drink. This is not dignified. This is not the kind of men the taxpayers, the real supporters of the courts, want to see elected. But his campaign, while not up to the standard set down for the conduct of non-partisan judicial campaigns, it is but little worse than the storm of personal abuse which the supporters of a local candidate are favoring all those who oppose their desire to oust Judge Dunwiddie. Voters in making their decision as to how to vote on Tuesday next should remember that Judge Dunwiddie is a honorable man, a good judiciary and is opposed by men who can give no good valid reason for his defeat beyond stating that Judge Sale, their candidate, is also an honorable man and a good judiciary. While this is true, why oust Judge Dunwiddie for the venting of a mere personal spite of a few disgruntled attorneys at the expense of losing the judgeship for Rock county. Judge Dunwiddie is strong in Green and Jefferson counties and with a good endorsement from Rock county will defeat Judge Grimm, his nearest opponent.

JUDGE DUNWIDDIE'S DECISIONS.

A writer in a Green County paper signing himself "Voter," tried recently to show that statements made by Mr. Boyd of Lima that Judge Dunwiddie was one of the ablest judges in the state were wrong and that County Judge Becker out there was a better judge than Judge Dunwiddie. "Voter" said that this was proven by the fact that 40 per cent of Judge Dunwiddie's decisions had been reversed by the supreme court.

Now another writer, signing himself "Justice," makes statements which are being circulated, which juggle figures in a remarkable way. "Justice" first figures up the cases correctly, as he says, and finds 45 per cent of reversals, then picks out a certain class of cases and figures it over again and makes 16.53 per cent in an effort to prove himself wrong.

A well-known lawyer who was shown "Justice's" statement smiled when he read it. "None of the gentlemen opposing Judge Dunwiddie," he said, "has ever questioned his high rank as a lawyer and a judge, nor could they rightly do so. The writer of that carefully avoids giving the percentage of jury cases reversed, which is the most important thing, so no one can tell whether his other figures are correct or not, and his last effort to make it 53 per cent leaves the whole open to suspicion. It is a long task to go through the books and get the facts. It was done as to all the circuit judges, a short time ago and Judge Dunwiddie's standing was about 40 per cent. Only two judges in the state had a better record. One was Judge Hastings of Green Bay; the other I do not remember. The use of that article signed 'Justice' is but a way of trying to convey an impression which they would not personally care to be responsible for."

In other words, it is another instance of campaigning open to just criticism.

The Gazette has not thought this discussion worthy of notice before, but we append an extract from a letter published in a Janesville paper on March 16th, last, which sufficiently disposes of it.

The correspondent of the Times purposely or ignorantly takes the statements of Mr. Boyd to mean that Judge Dunwiddie has never had any of his decisions reversed by the supreme court and triumphantly points out that out of seven cases five of Judge Dunwiddie's decisions were reversed in the last volume of the supreme court reports. He might also have stated that in the same volume Judge Vinje had eight out of twelve decisions reversed, Judge Dick five out of seven, and Judge Tarrant with five decisions had them all reversed, and also that in the last term of the supreme court Judge Dunwiddie had four decisions reviewed and all of them affirmed. The facts are that the cases reported in any one volume of the reports are of little significance on this question; in other volumes the judges named, including Judge Dunwiddie, will be found to have all or nearly all of their decisions affirmed. Every lawyer knows that about one half of all cases appealed to the supreme court from all the circuit judges in the state are reversed. Some of the judges have sixty per cent reversed, some a fifty per cent reversed, some a little less. Taking the Monroe writer's own figures that Judge Dunwiddie has had only forty per cent of his cases reversed, that fact places him very near the head of the twenty or more circuit judges of the state so far as the percentage of reversals is concerned, and demonstrates that Mr. Boyd's information was correct, and is borne out by the records of the court.

The correspondent of the Times has convicted himself by his own figures, either of ignorance, or of the subject, or of a desire to distort the facts rather than to get at the truth.

Very True

Photograph Agent—I'd like to sell you a coupon, ma'am, entitling you to a dozen photographs. Our new system makes the homeliest people look distinguished.

Mrs. Jamison—Nothing doing; there are too many distinguished looking people in this country already.

WHY YOU SHOULD VOTE FOR JUDGE DUNWIDDIE

It simmers down to a half dozen Janesville lawyers who are opposing Judge Dunwiddie actively and working so hard to defeat him, and their methods are questionable to say the least. Among other things this half dozen lawyers did was to publish a list of Rock county lawyers whom they claimed were supporting Judge Sale, with the idea of impressing the public that nearly the entire bar of Rock county was supporting Judge Sale. Since the publication of this list, several of the attorneys whose names appeared in the list have come out in communications, denying they were supporting Judge Sale, placing themselves on record in favor of Judge Dunwiddie, and what is also important showing up the method of the much talked of bar association convention that stirred up all this trouble by bringing out a candidate to oppose the present judge—Monroe Journal.

Another Endorsement
What is it may be said of the candidates for circuit court, other than Judge Dunwiddie, is merely guesswork and prediction. None of the statements can mean anything for they lack backing. Advocates of the other candidates talk in a vague way, but when questioned personally they candidly admit Judge Dunwiddie's ability and impartiality. His economical administration of justice and the record of more than one term as circuit judge is well known to the taxpayers and voters—the common people. Who is conducting the campaign against Judge Dunwiddie? A handful of lawyers—Draw your own conclusions—that Dunwiddie is the logical candidate—Albany Vindicator, Green county.

The Pure Food Roll of Honor.

"Good Housekeeping," a well known household magazine, voluntarily made a thorough examination of a list of Pure Food products and placed it without reservation upon its roll of honor.

To the March number of Good Housekeeping, in the department of "Pure Food Assurance," we find:

Non-Such mince meat, Merrill-Soule Co., Syracuse, a semi-meat composed of beef, apples, onions, carrots, raisins, currants, hulled oysters and salt, without color, preservatives or adulterants, no artificial coloring, produced under conditions as strict as sanitary perfection as possible.

This guarantee, which could not be bought at any price, is given to the public by the housewife. The sale of one million packages a month seems to prove the statement to be true. Your grocer sells Non-Such. Try it, and satisfy yourself. You are the one.

CHAPTER XVII.

ANN'S disgust and bitterness of self accusation were away as she faced the revolving sun-light and measured her scars against the breast of mighty Mogalyn. In the dawn of the second day the incident, having lost much of its shame and terror, was debatable, and under Matt's kindly counsel she reached a certain resignation.

"No one but ourselves need know what took place," he said in conclusion. "You are no talebearer, and when the woman herself, sobers off she'll not remember a word of it. Furthermore, I warned her that Jack would wring her neck if he knew what she had done. So I wouldn't give another thought of it—not one."

"I'll try to forget it," she promised humbly, but she could not at once put the experience out of mind. She could only wait for that besotted face to fade into a grisly apparition. In the end she pitied the poor woman who loved, and was willing to defend her love.

Raymond was chilled by the change in Ann—by a return to the cold aloofness of her manner at Barnett's—and was profoundly troubled by it.

The day following the woman's visit, Munro rode down as usual to call, and seemed amazed when Mrs. Kelly greeted him coldly. "Ann does not want to see you or any one else this morning," she said.

Munro whistled. "Another cold blast. It's sure drafty up here on the side hill, isn't it? What do you suppose is the cause of it?"

From the inner room a clear, low voice, like a mountain stream, replied, "Miss Rupert is not receiving Captain Munro today or at any other time."

He took a step toward the door. "What have I done to get a crack like that?"

The door closed with a decided jar and a bolt slid.

Munro bowed. "I understand. I take the hint. But some day, when you are feeling jolly, I'd like to know what has frosted the air down here among the aspens."

"I can tell you," said Nora, with the directness of a woman who has known rough men all her life. "Ann has learned the kind of life you live, and she despises the sight of your face."

For the first time in his life, Munro was confounded. He stood for a moment revolving an explanation. At last he said, "You mustn't take an enemy's report of me."

"We do not," said Nora calmly. "Your wife has called on us."

"My wife?"

"The woman who calls herself your wife. This all one so far as we are concerned."

Munro frowned. "Claire called. Here? Then with a leer that was characteristic of him, he added, 'I hope you had a pleasant chat.'"

"Ask her. She did all the talking."

Munro became very serious and very winning. "Now, see here, Nora—"

"Call me Mrs. Kelly," she interposed shortly.

He was not smiling now. His heart was in his voice. "You tell Ann not to misjudge me. She must give me a chance to square myself. I don't claim to be a saint, but I've been open and aboveboard with every man or woman I've ever had any dealings with. Whatever my past has been, I'm living on a different plane now. I've cut off all my old habits for her sake. I'm trying to live up to her standard of things. I know she's better than I am, but I can climb. My family is as good as hers. I started right, and with the help of a good woman I can get back to where I was. I claim the work I'm doing here is worthy her approval. Ask her to let me see her again."

Nora turned her face toward Ann's door and both waited in silence, but no sound came from the inner room, and Nora, seeing suffering in the lines of his face, said morosely: "Ye may as well go. The door will not open to you this day nor any other."

Munro turned, and went out with bowed head, and Nora could not doubt the sincerity of his pain.

One morning Ann rose to a singular light. In place of the clear, golden sunshine which had so often glorified her room a blue-gray mist lay thick against her window-pane. Raising the sash, she put her hand into it—it was like smoke, dry and cold. Dressing hurriedly she entered the sitting room, where Matt was helping his sons to dress.

She stepped to the door and looked out with vague alarm. The vapor had blotted out the world. Nothing could be seen but the faint forms of one or two cabins and a clump of nearby trees, and she went back shivering and a little depressed. "I don't like to leave the peak on such a day," she said at last. "I think I'll stay till the sun comes out. I want to think of it as it has been—radiant and inspiring."

The cloud hung motionless for hours, impenetrable, yet resisting. A hush was in the air as though some disaster, concealed as yet, was about to be discovered. About 10 o'clock as she stood on the steps wondering whether to cross to the bungalow or not Raymond burst from the obscurity.

"Good morning," called Ann. "Isn't this a strange effect?"

His eyes were shining, his face pale and his voice vibrant as he abruptly said: "Come to me; the time has come. I want to talk with you."

He took her by the arm. "You promised to listen. You are not afraid of me, are you?"

"No, but I do not understand. Where is Louis? Has anything happened to him?"

"Louis is safe with Kelly. I want to see you because things have happened to me. Come, I must see you alone."

They moved off up the path toward the overlook, and notwithstanding her brave words, the girl wavered in the gust of this man's overmastering excitement. The mist closed round them, all signs of other human presence disappeared, and they stood alone in a world of gray light wherein neither sky nor horizon line appeared. All that remained of the earth was a little strip of ground beneath their feet.

Raymond stopped at last, and held toward Ann a small, irregular piece of rock. "Do you see that?" he hoarsely inquired.

She took it wonderingly. "Is it ore?"

"Yes, and it's heavy with gold. Kelly's luck has won again. We've opened a vein that will make us both rich."

There was no tremor or doubt in his tone.

"Oh, I'm so glad!" she cried out, with unaffected pleasure. "Now Mrs. Kelly can go to live in the valley."

"Never mind the Kellys now," he cried out impatiently. "I have a great deal to say to you, and I want to say it here. I'm going to try and win you. His manner was exultant; his voice tensed with passion. "I am bold to recklessness today."

He had never been bumble. Now he rose above her, masterful, an avowed lover, and his eyes burning down into hers made her shrink and shiver as if from cold.

He misread the movement. "Are you warm enough?" he asked tenderly. "I hope you are, for I want to tell you—explain to you—why I am here. Let us sit here." He indicated a flat rock. "This is our only opportunity. No one will know—no one can see us. Will you listen?"

"I will listen," she said quietly and took a seat, drawing her cloak about her.

He took a seat a little in front, so that he could see her face, which was radiant as a rose in the mist. "I've been trying to write you a letter ever since you came. I wanted to set myself right with you on Louis' account. I love the lad, and I wanted you to know that I was trying to do him good."

"I know that. I trust you now."

"That assurance is sweet to me, but I want to tell you now that the only mystery in my life is this: I am a West Point cadet—I mean, I was."

"Were you, really?" she looked at him with such unmistakable relief and gladness that he faltered:

"Wait. I was only there two years. I was court-martialed for breach of discipline and gross insubordination at the beginning of my third year."

He hastened on. "You mustn't judge me hastily. It came on my return after furlough. That's the time when the routine and discipline pinch hardest on the men. After two years of grind that I hated I had a visit home—a delicious free time—and to get back into school, back into those cold, gray barracks, was like going into a strait jacket. The first few weeks after the vacation are times of disorder, a period of boyish devilry, and I took my share in it. My breach of discipline was nothing more than a boy's frolic. I should have been punished for it, and that would have ended it, but I hated, one of the officers, the disciplinarian, and when he rounded me up he respected me till I lost my head. Being a quick tempered youth, I answered him. He abused me shamefully, and I struck him in the face, and that ended my stay at West Point."

"Oh, how foolish! How wrong!"

"No, it was not wrong. I would do it again. The small sneek used a tone in addressing me which no man has a right to use to another. You wouldn't suppose a tone could hurt, but it did. It cut like a lash. Well, that ended my career as a soldier. My home was on the Ohio river, not far from Cincinnati, and my family still lives there. Our whole country is rich in traditions of General Grant, and my father had selected me out of all his sons to be the soldier of his family. You know how some men try to map their sons' careers. Don't you see, I couldn't go home?"

"Yes, I can see it was hard for your father. Was your mother living?"

"Yes, she's living yet. I write her every week, but not one word has passed between my father and me since my dismissal. Naturally enough, I drifted west and into cattle ranching. I liked the excitement of it, and I'd been trained to ride and to shoot. I gradually became cow boss and foreman, and so you found me, with a few thousand dollars saved up. Your counting changed every current in my life. I became ambitious to do something, to be rich. I came here, I bought this mine, and there shines my gold." He held it toward her again. "Now I can go home. My court-martial becomes a joke. Don't you see? My father is human. He would not receive me poor and disgraced. With a big mine behind me the case will be different."

"Are we all purchasable with gold?" she asked.

His high mood sank a little. "Don't misjudge me. It's not so clear in my mind as when I met you at the door. Money does help—you know it does. It extends a man's power; it makes him effective for good, if good is in him. I was a rancher when you met me; we stood in a different relation from that which we occupy now. Isn't that true?"

"Yes," she slowly answered, "but it isn't because of your mine."

"What is it because of?"

"It is because you have been kind and considerate of my brother."

He looked disappointed. "Is that all? I hoped you liked me for myself."

"I do like you," she answered.

"Can you not love me?"

"Do not press me." She spoke sharply, a flash of resentment in her eyes.

"I didn't intend to do so," he humbly replied. "I fear I've made a mess of it, just as I have with all the rest of my life. But this morning when we uncovered that vein it seemed as though I had a chance to recover my place in the world. I've wasted ten years of my life, masquerading here and there, but that is finished. Since I saw you life began to be serious business with me. You smile, but you know what I mean, and if you would only give me time I would make you proud of me."

He paused and looked about him. The mist seemed lightning, as if infiltrated with a golden vapor. It was in motion also, and far to the westward small patches of blue sky showed momentarily. "It is clearing," he said in a quiet voice, though his eyes were wet. "The west wind is setting in."

The beauty of the girl as she faced him there in the mist was shining, all conquering in its pulse and glow. "I love you, and I want you to know it. Some time I will ask you to be my wife."

"You must not do that," she cried out. "You will only lead up to disappointment. Don't you see how impossible it is? You are of the west, I am a city dweller. I am not fitted to help you. My whole life and training have been such that I am totally unfit for the life you would lead. Please do not misread me. It is not a question of your wealth or your poverty. It's my own way of life, my own mind. I don't want to hurt you, but I must tell you that it is impossible to think of a 'quite impossible' and she turned away toward the cabin, now half disclosed.

The door was open and Kelly and the two lads were on the floor picking at a small sack of ore. Mrs. Kelly looked up at Ann, laughing, with tears on her cheeks. "I don't believe it, not one word of it! And if it's true, Rob, I want you to keep it for us."

"Yes," said Kelly, "I've been of use to you in finding it, now do you be of use to me in keeping it."

"I will, Matt," said Raymond, and the two men shook hands on a new compact. Both Matt and Nora were too engrossed with their new found riches to observe the deep sadness of Raymond's face.

"Now," said Kelly, "watch out for Curran. He'll bite us out of it if he can. I depend on you to stand off the lawyers and the gamblers."

"The mist is rising," called Ann from the doorway.

As she spoke a tremendous report arose from the obscurity where the fog still clung.

"Now, what was that?" queried Matt, and all stood transfixed with surprise and vague apprehension.

Another and duller report followed—one that shook the ground. Kelly rushed

The beauty of the girl as she faced him there in the mist was shining, all conquering in its pulse and glow. "I love you, and I want you to know it. Some time I will ask you to be my wife."

"You must not do that," she cried out. "You will only lead up to disappointment. Don't you see how impossible it is? You are of the west, I am a city dweller. I am not fitted to help you. My whole life and training have been such that I am totally unfit for the life you would lead. Please do not misread me. It is not a question of your wealth or your poverty. It's my own way of life, my own mind. I don't want to hurt you, but I must tell you that it is impossible to think of a 'quite impossible' and she turned away toward the cabin, now half disclosed.

The door was open and Kelly and the two lads were on the floor picking at a small sack of ore. Mrs. Kelly looked up at Ann, laughing, with tears on her cheeks. "I don't believe it, not one word of it! And if it's true, Rob, I want you to keep it for us."

"Yes," said Kelly, "I've been of use to you in finding it, now do you be of use to me in keeping it."

"I will, Matt," said Raymond, and the two men shook hands on a new compact. Both Matt and Nora were too engrossed with their new found riches to observe the deep sadness of Raymond's face.

"Now," said Kelly, "watch out for Curran. He'll bite us out of it if he can. I depend on you to stand off the lawyers and the gamblers."

"The mist is rising," called Ann from the doorway.

As she spoke a tremendous report arose from the obscurity where the fog still clung.

"Now, what was that?" queried Matt, and all stood transfixed with surprise and vague apprehension.

Another and duller report followed—one that shook the ground. Kelly rushed go home. My court-martial becomes a joke. Don't you see? My father is human. He would not receive me poor and disgraced. With a big mine behind me the case will be different."

"Are we all purchasable with gold?" she asked.

His high mood sank a little. "Don't misjudge me. It's not so clear in my mind as when I met you at the door. Money does help—you know it does. It extends a man's power; it makes him effective for good, if good is in him. I was a rancher when you met me; we stood in a different relation from that which we occupy now. Isn't that true?"

"Yes," she slowly answered, "but it isn't because of your mine."

"What is it because of?"

"It is because you have been kind and considerate of my brother."

He looked disappointed. "Is that all? I hoped you liked me for myself."

"I do like you," she answered.

"Can you not love me?"

"Do not press me." She spoke sharply, a flash of resentment in her eyes.

"I didn't intend to do so," he humbly replied. "I fear I've made a mess of it, just as I have with all the rest of my life. But this morning when we uncovered that vein it seemed as though I had a chance to recover my place in the world. I've wasted ten years of my life, masquerading here and there, but that is finished. Since I saw you life began to be serious business with me. You smile, but you know what I mean, and if you would only give me time I would make you proud of me."

He paused and looked about him. The mist seemed lightning, as if infiltrated with a golden vapor. It was in motion also, and far to the westward small patches of blue sky showed momentarily. "It is clearing," he said in a quiet voice, though his eyes were wet. "The west wind is setting in."

The beauty of the girl as she faced him there in the mist was shining, all conquering in its pulse and glow. "I love you, and I want you to know it. Some time I will ask you to be my wife."

"You must not do that," she cried out. "You will only lead up to disappointment. Don't you see how impossible it is? You are of the west, I am a city dweller. I am not fitted to help you. A few weeks ago we were informed by a friend travelling man that on a certain day four of Chicago's largest wholesale houses were going to have a combination one-day sale in order to close lots of new spring merchandise where the assortments had been depleted by an unusually large early trade. In short, a wholesale sale of odds and ends in newest spring creations. We did not hesitate. Our buyers were sent to market with instructions to buy liberally where goods were under market value. The goods are here in the store now. Marked in plain prices at much under their real value. The sale begins Saturday, and continues for one week. The store is fairly glistening with new Spring Bargains. Read the items below and come.
